

MARK W. THEISEN, SR.

President

Tilt-Con Corporation

As president of Tilt-Con Corporation, Mark W. Theisen, Sr., draws from more than 30 years of extensive construction experience to lead the corporation's construction division. In 1972, at age 17, Theisen began his career in the construction industry, first as a tradesman then progressing to a superintendent, general superintendent and eventually starting his own company in 1987.

Theisen partnered with his brother, Rob, to form Tilt-Con Corporation. Now, Theisen provides leadership to Tilt-Con's entire construction operations division, which includes more than 450 employees, 30 superintendents and approximately 60 projects per year.

Theisen is highly respected throughout the Southeastern United States as a construction professional and business leader due to his ability to produce an exceptional product. Known for his ability to turn the most difficult building into a tilt-up success, Mark is renowned for continuing to innovate the tilt-up concrete construction field.

As a licensed general contractor in Florida and a tilt-up concrete construction specialist, he has been entrusted to build a variety of structures from retail and school complexes to distribution centers and multi-story office buildings. His work has been recognized with a myriad of awards, including Engineering News Record's Top 600 Specialty Contractors in America, F.W. Dodge's Top 150 Specialty Contractors in the Southeast and Best Concrete Project in 2005 by Southeast Construction magazine. Tilt-Con is also the most awarded tilt-up concrete construction company in America by the Tilt-Up Concrete Association.
